To do this will design and manage a program of recreational and social facilities, activities, services and events targeted at the factors causing deprivation; delivered in-house. (Please use a separate sheet if required)	2.3  2.9	We will run Activate, an award-winning Community Development course run by the University of Glasgow for 15 people. The course will provide local people with a wide range of skills and knowledge including anti-discriminatory practice, principles of community development and collective action that will empower and equip participants to take action to ensure Ferguslie Park and its residents reach their full potential. The course has a track record of inspiring participants to set up services in their own community including youth clubs, food banks and community event groups and we hope to replicate this success locally. The Tannahill Centre has undertaken a number of community consultation events throughout 2017. 66% of respondents to our onsite latest winter survey stated that people would like the Tannahill Centre to support them in further education and training. In January 2018 we organised a community conference which over 100 people attended. The feedback from the workshops put the people of Ferguslie Park as the most underutilized local asset. With a need to develop the community an essential aspect. With poor educational attainment contributing to this poor rating, Ferguslie Park is currently rated No 1 in the Scottish index of Multiple Deprivation. It is essential that the community are equipped with the tools to tackle such inequalities. The Community Council have stated that they support this application. We will advertise the opportunity to all members of the community through social media, newsletters and posters. We will identify people through established community groups. We will meet with interested parties and explain the benefits

		and expectations of the course. We will invite referrals from partner community organisations such as; Active communities, YMCA Paisley, Community Council, Ferguslie Seniors, Ferguslie Park Housing Association, Ferguslie Events Group and the Star Project. The course will be co facilitated by U of G and Tannahill staff at a time that community members can access normally over a period of 12 to 15 weeks. Future courses can be facilitated by Tannahill staff at a reduced cost, which will enable further participants in the future. The Tannahill Development Officer and Self-Reliant Group Development Worker will continue to support any initiatives identified by the group on course completion. The impact of this course has been felt in communities across the country in a number of ways. Local community groups said they feel better equipped to take a strategic approach to dealing with community issues and working in partnership. New ideas and opportunities have been created as a result of the very diverse group of students learning together. Examples include intergenerational projects in Glasgow's East End and successfully leveraging funds to develop youth services. Activate has helped unlock the potential in students to progress into higher education. As a result of the course 4 local groups will become more resilient. 1 New local group will be formed and constituted designed to address a specific issue. 2 Attendees will go on to further education. The course will directly benefit 15-20 attendees who will receive a UofG qualification and attend a graduation event. The whole community will benefit from the group's efforts and any local organisations who participate will benefit from further understanding of community development.
