There was submitted a report by S Cruickshank, Chair, Renfrewshire Access Panel in relation to inequalities, participation and human rights before, during and beyond Covid-19.

The report advised that in August 2020, Glasgow Disability Alliance (GDA) produced a report which outlined members' concerns during the first lockdown, a copy of which was attached as an appendix. It advised that 80% of disabled people did not know where to turn to for help in their local communities in terms of information, advice, services or support; 82% were worried about social isolation and loneliness; and 60% faced digital exclusion- either the device, the connectivity or the confidence to use digital equipment.

During discussion it was noted that there required to be a distinction between mental and physical disability and the support available around both areas; to acknowledge that there were still covid-related problems in relation to accessing services; and as 60% of disabled people faced digital exclusion, communication was required in all formats not just digitally but it was acknowledged it was very difficult to reach certain parts of the community.

It was agreed that communications methodology and the balance between disabilities be looked at.

- (a) That the update be noted.
